Talk with a documentary photographer based in New York City

Laylah Amatullah Barrayn will visit our school and talk about her artwork

Stonybrook, NY: A famous documentary photographer Laylah Amatullah Barrayn who displayed her work in many museums and publications will come to Stony Brook. Her work has been featured in the Museum of Contemporary African Diasporan Arts and The New York Times. The artist talk will be about the photos in The View From Here documents daily life, religion, and panoramic vistas in Senegal with the photographer. The talk will be held on Oct. 10 in Zuccaire Gallery, Staller Center at 1p.m. Everyone interested in her work is welcomed.

Barrayn explains her work "These photographs memorialize my appreciation of these women and their work, as well as my deep love and respect for the written word."

About Laylah Amatullah Barrayn: Laylah Amatullah Barrayn is one of the members in Kamoinge (a pioneering collective of African American photographers). She has done many group and solo exhibitions based in New York. Her latest solo exhibition is Baye Fall: Roots in Spirituality, Fashion, and Resistance in PA.
